

Robb Report Collections 4.09

Avantair is one of a very few private aviation firms that has seen dramatic growth during these uncertain economic times. The publicly traded company has a long-established fractional ownership program, but it has also introduced innovative new programs including the Edge Card, and recently launched the Axis Club, the industry's first bridge program between fractional ownership and time cards.